

My Journey with Homeopathy at Paris Alexander Skin and Wellness Center: A Patient-Client Perspective

As someone who's had eczema since childhood, I tended to focus on what I believed to be the negative appearance of my skin, rather than the positive. When my mother passed away two years ago, it seemed like my skin disorder –due to stress--went into overdrive. There were many days because of the severe itching, scaling, bleeding, oozing, and swelling when I just wanted to hide away. I was poked and prodded by doctors, underwent biopsies, and was diagnosed with everything from sun sensitivity to connective tissue disorders. Over my lifetime, I have taken pills; slathered on ointments, creams, and oils; bathed in oatmeal; shampooed with tar; and endured years of cortisone shots. I finally reached a plateau of seeing no noticeable improvements-until now.

I've never felt compelled to write a testimonial, but I'm making an exception. Since coming to see Dr. Dornaz Amini at Paris Alexander Day Spa, I've seen a positive change in my skin. I was a skeptic about homeopathy and was only going to give Dr. Amini 6 months of my time. Six months later and I'm still scheduling appointments, primarily because I can tell the difference the treatments are making. The incessant itching has stopped, the discoloration has subsided, and the scaliness has all but disappeared. Family and friends have commented on the difference in my skin as well.

Am I 100% "cured"?? No, not yet. But I've seen improvements that I haven't seen in decades that I was a patient of traditional medicine. I'm now a homeopathy convert because of Dr. Amini. ☺
